Art Unit: 1616

Claims 1, 5, 6, 27-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for those on a low-calorie diet and who are not already consuming three servings of dairy, does not reasonably provide enablement for on any diet and consuming any amount of dairy. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. The "Express," a daily tabloid published by the Washington Post, is cited as extrinsic evidence containing an admission by one of the inventors, Michael Zemel. In an article on page 10 of the 7/19/05 issue he is cited as stating that the claimed invention works only for people who eat a low-calorie diet and who are not already consuming three servings of dairy. Applicants' claims do not recite such limitations. Applicants are advised that such an amendment to the claims must be supported by the specification.

Applicants argue the interview is not admissible because it is hearsay. However, applicants provide no authority for their premise.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 5, 6, 27-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Metz et al (AJH 1:58-60 1988).

Art Unit: 1616

Metz et al teach a reduction in body fat content in rats consuming higher diets of calcium (abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to formulate a high calcium diet for humans to achieve the beneficial effect of a reduction in body fat content in view of the Metz et al results.

As to the particular claimed dosage frequency, amount, and vehicle, optimum parameters may be obtained by routine experimentation. In re Boesch 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980). One of ordinary skill will recognize that reduction in body fat content is a consequence of lipolysis of fat in adipocytes. As to the particular claimed foods, they are well known to contain calcium. As to the claimed supplements, such are also well known, even to the layman.

Claims 1, 5, 6, 27-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Skinner et al (Scand J Nutr 2/99 suppl 34 p. 45S).

Skinner et al teach that children's fat mass is moderated by dietary calcium (abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to formulate a high calcium diet for children to achieve the beneficial effect of a reduction in body fat content in view of the Skinner et al.

As to the particular claimed dosage frequency, amount, and vehicle, optimum parameters may be obtained by routine experimentation. In re Boesch 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980). As to the particular claimed foods, they are well known to contain calcium. As to the claimed supplements, such are also well known, even to the layman.

Claims 1, 5, 6, 27-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Summerbell et al (BMJ 317 1998 p. 1487-89).

Summerbell et al teach weight loss in obese patients on a diet comprising milk or yoghurt (abstract, p. 1488 under "milk only").

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to formulate a high calcium diet for obese patients to achieve the beneficial effect of a reduction in body fat content in view of the Summerbell et al.

As to the particular claimed dosage frequency, amount, and vehicle, optimum parameters may be obtained by routine experimentation. In re Boesch 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980). As to the particular claimed non-dairy foods, they are well-known to contain calcium. As to the claimed supplements, such are also well-known, even to the layman.

Claims 1, 5, 6, 27-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 1, 50, and 61 "restricted caloric diet" is vague; it is subjective.

No claims are allowed.
